New York, June 8.—The market was irregular from the opening to-day, with a light trade, most of which was local and professional in character. There was a decline of 13 points on July and 10 on August shortly after the opening, with 5 to 3 on the rest of the list from last night's closing quotations.

The market was firmer and more active in the late afternoon under further bullish activity in July and August against the shorts in those positions.

August shortly after the opening, with 5 to 3 on the rest of the list from last night's closing quotations.

The market was firmer and more active in the late afternoon under further bullish activity in July and August against the shorts in those positions. This carried August up 19 points to 14.78, and 5 points on July, while the rest of the list advanced about 8 to 5. There was good profit-taking on this rise, and the market eased off under it later, but the undertone was kept good up to the close, with a continuance of support in the near months.
